The Scanner Envy 710 was the first model in the Envy line, combining elegance with sportiness. It measures 7.07 m in length and 2.82 m in width, featuring six air chambers with 55 to 58 cm diameter tubes made of Hypalon neoprene (1670 dtex). Approved for 14 persons and engines up to 320 hp, available as either an outboard or inboard unit. The generous exterior dimensions provide ample space on board and high stability, even in choppy seas. The helm console houses an interior with a toilet; standard features include seat cushions, a transom cushion, a fiberglass platform, a stainless steel bow fitting with anchor roller, and an integrated
